

You're invited to Mountain Landcare's

Seed Collection Workshop

Are you interested in learning how to collect and propagate native seed? You are invited to come along to this native seed collecting workshop with Lou Bull. Lou has worked as a native seed collector for 10 years with Greening Australia and established Seed Saver's Albury Wodonga. This is a great opportunity to improve your skills, or learn some new ones that contribute to landscape recover after the January fires.

This is a free community event, anyone is able to attend, however numbers may be restricted.
